Thinking Out Loud

By H. M. L.

Pondering arguments relating to the question of neutrality in the United States, always with the thought in mind that the neutrality of the United States should be air-tight from at least a legal point of view, so that we may keep out of the war, we have come to the conclusion that restoration of age-old international legal neutrality, of selling anything to belligerents who have the money to pay for it, is the only one that Yankee horse sense can approve.

As matters stand now under what the President terms the "so-called" Neutrality act, this country is of direct assistance to Mr. Hitler and the kind of world disturbance he stands for. Every shipload of munitions denied France and England, is a direct aid to Germany. Italy teeters on the fence of neutrality for the present but may readily get off the fence on the German side if the United States should continue its "so-called" neutrality.

In another column Congressman Harry Englebright gives the real reason the House turned down Mr. Roosevelt's proposed neutrality law. The bill as submitted by the Administration provided that the President from time to time could define combat zones in which American ships would not be permitted. In effect, Congressman, feared this would make the President dictator of the world. He could define combat zones wherever he chose. It would be quite possible to cut off neutrals from our shipping, to define the zones in such a way as to give France and England every advantage, and make us to all practical purposes, their allies. Moreover Hitler and his allies, if any, would not be bound by the President's combat zones. With munitions going to England and France in American bottoms, U-boats would sink them anywhere they found them on the high seas.

Furthermore the thought of American ships carrying munitions, or for that matter any kind of supplies to England and France was repugnant to the House of Representatives. If American ships are destroyed anywhere by German mines or torpedoes, immediately war fever rises in this country, presently we are fighting mad. Congress, the President, or both would be swept away in the jingo rush to arms and vindication for Uncle Sam.

The old-fashioned kind of neutrality, was the kind that the Scandinavian countries enjoyed during the world war. Germany probably lasted a year longer because Sweden, Norway and Denmark were able to supply much needed steel, foods and munitions. That is the kind of neutrality we should have today, in order to avoid aiding the enemy which the United States helped to defeat in 1918. Does anyone remember that under that kind of neutrality, and while we were supplying the Allies prior to our entrance in the last war, that Germany sent over an undersea boat and took on a load of nickel from one of our eastern ports? The country was pretty much disgusted at the time, but in supplying Germany with this much needed metal, Uncle Sam was observing strict neutrality.

It is conceivable, but not very probable, that Germany may repeat this exploit on a larger scale in this war, and under the standard neutrality of international law, we would again supply her.

The truth about the neutrality of any neutral country nowadays of course, is that actual neutrality is impossible. Sweden, for instance, has free access to the Baltic ports of Germany and will undoubtedly reap a war harvest. Great Britain and France have free access to the Western hemisphere, and all nations therein will profit by war trade so long as they abstain from participation in the war itself.

Our neutrality, then, under present conditions benefits Germany. Under the President's proposal it will benefit our former allies. We

Englebright Wants Neutrality That Will Keep Us Out of War

Congressman Harry L. Englebright has been formally notified that Congress will meet in special session September 21, next Thursday. Mr. Englebright expects to leave Nevada City Sunday morning for Washington, D. C.

In an interview with a representative of the Nugget yesterday Harry L. Englebright, Congressman from this district, stressed the fact that to keep this country out of the European war, every precaution must be taken in framing a neutrality act so that it will do just that. He doubted, if as happened in the world war, England and France again face defeat, whether neutrality or anything else can stop this country from entering hositilities on behalf of their former allies.

"The reason the House of Representatives at the last session amended the President's neutrality bill, as drawn by him and his advisors, said Mr. Englebright, was that we thought it fraught with great danger of placing us soon beside the English and France in the war. We especially objected to the fact that his bill does not prohibit American ships from carrying munitions and food to the French and English belligerents, and gives him the power to define combat zones from time to time, which American ships would be forbidden to enter.

"For instance, if the President chose, he could define a combat zone as all along the North Sea coast of Norway, a neutral from which American shipping would be excluded. This would be of the greatest assistance to our former allies, in that it would cut off the flow of food or munitions to neutral countries, that, as in the last war, would undoubtedly be engaged in supplying Germany with much needed materials. He could do the same with the Mediteranean and Italy, which is now, and may remain, a neutral upon whom Germany will lean heavily for both arms and food supplies.

"In other words by his power to declare combat, the President could become a world dictator and could make us very definitely the ally of Great Britain and France by mere enactment of his "so-called" neutrality bill.

"Besides, this Congress is very reluctant to permit American shipping to take any war hazards whatever. The cash and carry clause in the present neutrality act, expired last May 1. It was not re-enacted at the last session of Congress, and it is now imperative that something be done about it. Sinking our ships anywhere on the seven seas by mines or torpedoes, as we found in the last war, enrages our people, and to avoid this factor in influencing us toward war, we must in our neutrality act strictly limit our shipping to those waters which are reasonably safe.

"I realize that this nation, at least ninety per cent of it, hopes for the victory of French and British arms. On the other hand I am convinced that American sentiment is also about ninety per cent against participation in another European war. This is a vital consideration and in framing a new neutrality act, I feel certain Congress will insist on leaving no loop-holes which will permit American shipping or American citizens to take hazards that eventually may land us in another European war.

"The entire subject of neutrality is involved in complexity. Under the present neutrality act, the President has not seen fit to "find a state of war" exists between China and Japan." Had he done so we would have ceased to ship petroleum and its products, steel products, scrap iron, and aircraft to Japan. That would have meant an increase in unemployment in this country at the same time giving high offense to Japan.

"There is a very large proportion, perhaps a majority of Congressmen, who object strenuously to export of arms or munitions to any of belligerents, even on a cash and carry basis. Their reasoning is that our soldiers will eventually follow our arms into battle. As a matter of fact when the foreign belligerents have purchased all the arms they can buy for the cash or collateral they now possess, there will be a clamor and a solid bloc of those immediately interested in the manufacture of war supplies to extend belligerents credit. Resources of both England and France, including cash and securities that are available for purchase of supplies here, do not exceed four billion dollars. This does not go far in a modern war. The time would come almost inevitably, when our government would be importuned by our own manufacturing interest to extend credit. The last war revealed the iniquity of war credits. Not only did we become involved in the war, but when it ended and Uncle Sam tried to collect, debts were practically repudiated, and he was designated "Shylock". Not pleasant to contemplate either in retrospect or the future."

NEVA REBEKAHS WILL OBSERVE ANNIVERSARY

Neva Rebekah Lodge of Nevada City will celebrate its anniversary Saturday evening, September 16, at Odd Fellows hall. Rebekahs through out the entire district are invited to attend. There will be an entertainment and refreshments.

ALONG THE GREENHORN

Charles England who has an option on gravel along Greenhorn stream has a floating doodle bug with two jigs handling many yards of gravel per day. Six men are employed.

SCHOOL PATROL SOON ON DUTY

The elementary school patrol will go on duty at different points about Nevada City Monday morning. The caps, flags and badges were secured personally by Chief of Police Garfield Robson and the school donated $10 toward red sweaters. Sam Brown belts have been ordered and will arrive later. The red flags have the word "Stop" on them and the junior traffic officers will be able to stop machines by signaling them from the sidewalk instead of going out into the streets. The boys will be stationed at points where school children travel most frequently.

RELIEF HILL

Two shifts are working on preparatory work at the Relief Hill gravel mine operated by C. E. Clark. In using the outlet tunnel for hydraulicking or sluicing operations in the past a section was worn away and this is being graded up and a 350 foot flume will be built over this strip to strengthen the site for continuous hydraulicking once the Narrows dam is completed. It is expected the flume will be completed this fall. Seven men are employed.

HUNTERS READY TO HUNT BUCKS ON SAT. MORN

Nevada City sportsmen are making ready for deer hunts tomorrow, September 16, opening day.

"Whispering" Dick Lane stated he was going out the first day and have the rest of the time to continue dove hunting and fishing.

John Tognarelli, Herbert Skeahan, Raymond Arbogast, Max Solaro, Edward Penrose and George Falmbigl went into the mountains last evening to make camp, return today and take in supplies and be in readiness for several days of hunting. George Falmbigl, chef of Monte Carlo fame, will be on hand again this year to prepare feasts for the hungry hunters when they return to camp with their bucks.

Halstead Downey and J. J. Jackson, Jr., have made all plans for a deer hunt in the high Sierras over the coming week end. Another party preparing for a four day stay in the mountains is Gene Barberi, Bob Gates, Silvio Figaroli, Pete Vanzi.

Another group making preparations to enjoy a week's hunt in the high Sierras is Sheriff Carl J. Tobiassen, Supervisor Cary Arbogast, Noble McCormack, Jr., Robert Raymond and Donald Steger, Nevada City, Supervisor Jay Coughlan and brother, William, of Columbia Hill. Frank Williams, driver on the twin city bus line, will be in another party getting an early start for a good hunting location.

CHAMBER TO DISCUSS NEW SKI COURSE

H. F. Sofge, secretary of the Nevada City Chamber of Commerce, states that entry blanks for placing exhibits in the second annual 17th Agricultural county fair can be obtained in the chamber headquarters.

There will be a meeting of the Chamber of Commerce Tuesday evening and important matters will be discussed. The committee working on the Downieville-Nevada City highway will report. Some action will also be taken in regard to the proposed new ski site above the junction of the Washington-Tahoe Ukiah highway and near the Steep Hollow district. In another month work on this should be underway if the project is approved.

WPA RENOVATES SCHOOL BLDGS.

William P. Mitchell, of Grass Valley and time keeper for the WPA, stated Wednesday morning there were 75 men employed in Scotts Flat reservoir site cleaning up the brush and timber and testing for the foundation of the proposed new dam that the Nevada Irrigation District is to build.

Thirty men have been employed at the Lime Kiln school house and completed their work last week. The school house has been moved one-fourth mile to a new site, remodeled, repainted and grounds fixed up about the building. School opened there Monday.

Ten men completed remodeling and repainting the Indian Springs school house. It took two months to do this work and also fix up the school grounds. School started in the newly renovated building a week ago.

GIANT KING

Ten men are employed under Jack Rondoni, mine foreman, at the Giant King mine at Washington. Several samples of the ore have been sent out for tests and as soon as enough ore is mined and values determined it is stated plans are for a good sized mill.

McGINNIS GRAVEL

Richard Richards who has an option on the 80 acre McGinnis gravel property in the Quaker Hill mining district, has installed a 15,000 gallon tank to catch water for mine operations. Test holes over the property ran well for gold content and as soon as sufficient water is available active operations will be under way.

Nevada County Mine Payroll Now $373,050

There was a slight decrease in the number of miners employed during the past month, a survey of mining operations in Nevada county revealed yesterday. The number of men employed has declined from 2,526 to 2,487, and the monthly payroll declines to $373,050.

Ancho-Erie increased its mine forces to ten, and there was also a slight increase in the number of men employed in the Spanish mine, fifteen now being engaged in work there. In the Lava Cap a decrease of 20 men is noted and the Murchie mine has also decreased its working force by 20 men. The Melvill, Brown Hill, Lucky Jane, and Calneva gravel properties have suspended operations for the season, resulting in total decrease of 41 employed miners. On the other hand the England, Relief Hill, and McGinnis gravel operations have resumed activity, and the Sunflower quartz property is also employing a small force, making a total of 22 men employed on those four properties.

STOCKTON HILL MINE

W. W. Woock of Auburn is president and general manager of the Stockton Hill mine south of Grass Valley where plans are being mapped for large operations. The program calls for continuing the drift 1,000 feet and the main shaft is being enlarged to three compartments and concreted. A 50 foot all steel headframe is to be installed, ore bins built and 100 ton cyanide plant to be installed. Milling ore is blocked out on the 265 foot level in the shaft. The values continue to hold up at the 415 foot level.

ALASKA MINE

Six men are employed at the Alaska mine at Pike City. Pumps have been installed to handle the immense flow of water and unwatering the 900 foot shaft has started. Due to rich finds in the mine before it was closed because of a heavy flow of water the reopening of this mine will be watched with keen interest by mining men throughout the west. R. Hohlen is superintendent and H. Sorenson of San Francisco has the option on the property.

TWO SHIFTS IN MURCHIE MINE'S LONG CROSSCUT

Two shifts are now engaged in running the crosscut from the 400 foot level of the Murchie into the North Banner area. This crosscut will be 6,000 feet long and will cost, it is estimated $100,000. Although there are now fifty men employed in the Murchie including those working in the crosscut, several leasers are taking out ore in the upper levels which is being milled at the North Star. Robert Hendricks, manager of the Murchie, Pennsylvania and Zeibright mines, reports that the crosscut is now in virgin ground. Modern equipment is being used to expedite the work.

BLACK SAND SELLS AT $2.60 PER HUNDRED

Asayer Hal D. Draper has purchased 181 lots of black sand and since he started purchasing it about a year ago. The highest he has ever paid was $2.60 per pound for the black sand. He stated the snipers who are overlooking the black sand in their cleanups are missing a bet. Quite a number of lots of sand are coming in now with water so low in many rivers and streams.

The South Yuba is so low that water trickles from pool to pool below the highway bridge. It is thought if the big pools were pumped many dollars could be recovered from the sand and gravel but very few snipers are financially able to install pumps.

DANGER OF FIRE STILL PERSISTS

E. L. Stone, fire dispatcher for the Tahoe national forest, stated yesterday rain fall was spotted throughout the forest areas and in some places such as in the vicinity of Nevada City, Downieville and Sierra City it did not settle the dust. There is danger now that hunters entering the forest areas will let down in their efforts to prevent fires. One fire occurred near Boca yesterday and was presumed to be due to a hunter's fire. He evidently attempted to establish a camp and found it unsuitable and moved out leaving his fire smouldering. It spread and burned one fourth acre.

OLD ROAD TO NOR. SAN JUAN BEING REPAIRED

Supervisors Cary S. Arbogast of the Nevada City district and Warren Odell of the Bridgeport section have united in making the old San Juan Purden bridge road passable and repaired the bridge. Fifteen CCC boys were allotted to the supervisors by the Tahoe National Forest to lay planks on the bridge. The road extends from Lake Vera to North San Juan and is a short cut to persons living at Montezuma Hill, snipers along the South Yuba river and in winter it benefits the telephone and Pacific Gas and Electric companies in keeping up their lines.

GREENHORN PLACER

The operator of the Greenhorn Placer mine in the You Bet district has sold his interest it is stated. The new owner is preparing to install equipment and start operations on a larger scale. W. Merrill was the former owner. The property was taken under option from Congressman Harry L. Englebright, Mrs. E. T. Powell, Miss Grimes and Mrs. M. Warnecke, all of Nevada City.

Industryville, U. S. A.

You can look all over the biggest map of the United States in existence without finding Industryville. For it is the average manufacturing community, typical of the thousands of similar towns located all over the broad face of this country of ours. No other nation in the world has so many Industryvilles. Maybe that's why no other nation has as high a standard of living as we have.

Of course anyone actually working in a plant or factory can see that manufacturing enterprise has a lot to do with the well-being of the individual community. If it weren't for employment and regular payrolls, there would be very little prosperity anywhere. The grocery store down the street, the drugstore on the corner, would not be there if the buying power that makes them possible were lacking.

Recently this dependence was worked out from a factual point of view. The study was made by building up a theoretical community around a factory employing 150 men, using the proportions that exist in the United States as a whole, but reducing them to scale.

The factory itself has an investment in the plant and equipment providing the basis for jobs of $975.000. The annual factory payroll runs to $180.000 providing direct support for 600 people. The entire working population of the community is 650 people. There are 33 retail stores. There are 20 automobiles and the service to go with them. 393 homes in the community are occupied. There's a schoolhouse with 22 rooms. Opportunities exist in Industryville for two dozen professional men. $53,000 annually is paid out to the railroads in one form or another. The town uses farm products from 6,600 acres. There's a total valuation of two and a half million dollars. Retail sales reach over a half million dollars. And throughout Industryville, in the course of a normal year, the almost unbelievable sum of seven million dollar's worth of check and cash payments is completed.

There, in brief, is Industryville, U. S. A. It's not just a factory all by itself, surrounded by a town which merely happens to be there by accident. The town and the factory depend on each other, and this one small example is repeated and multiplied the country over till, in the sum total, we have America—the greatest industrial nation in the word, the country with the highest standard of living and the best and happiest communities yet conceived by man.—Contributed.

Tip To The Aged

(Woodland Democrat)

Old age pensions will be increased from $35 to $40 under the provisions of legislation which passed Congress and has been signed by the executive. The federal contribution is now $20 per month instead of the $15 which had previously prevailed.

The professional promoters and agitators will conveniently overlook the news item upon which this comment is based and the significance which it carries that the elderly citizens of California are in a strong position for still additional pension increases if they will but curb their impatience and lodge their trust in the good faith and the good heart of the taxpayers rather than irresponsibles who fatten upon the fear of age dependency.

The assurance of regular county paydays is worth vastly more than the blandishments of self-seeking promoters whose machinations may cause the pensioners to lose that which they already have—a repetition of the fable of the dog and the bone.

It will bear repeating that California pays the highest pension in the nation. In Texas the top pension is $12. In Florida it is $10. Arkansas pays $6.08. California pays her half of the nation's top pension of $40, and the United States Treasury matches the ante. Both state and nation guarantee their pension promises, and they're payable in real money.

Harry Goes A-Wooing

Harry Hopkins, United States secretary of commerce has set his new coterie of United States department of commerce expects to work on a plan to induce private capital to invest in low-cost housing, comes the news from Washington.

The picture of Harry Hopkins wooing private capital on behalf of any investment is a new one to America, even in the swiftly shifting panorama of the New Deal.

America's public memory is notoriously short. But it isn't short enough to have permitted some recent episodes in the official life of Harry Hopkins to slip into forgetfulness.

There was the Harry Hopkins who sneered, "we know some adjectives, too," when hard-headed American common sense rebelled at some of the more flagrant of the New Deal's fancy footwork kicking around O. P. M., which means Other People's Money.

There was the Harry Hopkins whom Washington correspondents quoted as saying, in answer to protests: "Yes, we'll continue to tax and tax, and spend and spend, and elect and elect." And in spite of official denials, these correspondents stick to their guns, and their accuracy seldom is questioned except by politicians that accuracy embarrasses.

There was the Harry Hopkins who swung a mean bludgeon against private capital, when that was the New Deal style.

Economically, historically, politically, there's a long, long trail a-winding between the spot where private capital is berated and slugged and taxed to the hilt, and the spot where a front-rank New Dealer who rode the New Deal to cabinet rank starts wooing it to invest.

Private capital cannot spend and spend, and continue intact Private capital cannot laugh off its mistakes with a wisecrack, and fill its empty bank account by calling together a group of politicians and inducing them to vote new laws that permit it to tax and tax.

Private capital must meet pay rolls and pay taxes, or go out of business. Private capital must put to the test of hard, practical common sense any field in which it contemplates investment. Private capital. wisely and courageously invested. provides a living for more Americans than even the New Deal has loaded the public pay rolls with more government employes than this nation ever knew before. even in wartime.

When such a New Dealer as Harry Hopkins, who for years has had the spending of billions of dollars that came out of other people's pockets by the "tax and tax" method, starts seeking to induce private capital to invest in anything. it may be eloquent of the long. long thoughts that come even to a politician when the administration by which he has risen high nears another national election, and the votes of a people who yet, strangely, continue to outnumber government employes, are about to be cast.

Private capital, after all, is anything anybody has been able to save and invest, these tax-and-tax days. There must be a questioning look in its eyes when Harry Hopkins comes a-wooing.—New Orleans States (New Orleans, La.)

have to choose. There probably is not one man in a thousand who has not already made his choice. As a matter of fact we regard the likelihood of United States participation in the war as considerably reduced. if Congress, which the President has called to meet September 21, does repeal the salient provisions of the present neutrality act.

If England and France under a cash and carry plan, can receive an abundance of food and munitions from the countries of the New World, they will the more speedily be able to end the war, and we shall not again be greeted and moved by the cry: "England is fighting with her back against the wall!" This writer is convinced that the only condition which will so arouse this country and overcome its abhorrence of again participating in a European war, is that France and Great Britain again face defeat. In that event we have not a doubt in the world that we would repeat the experience of the last war.

We strongly suspect that when Congress reshapes our neutrality act in a few days, as is confidently expected, it will have far reaching repercussions in both Germany and Italy. The military headquarters of both countries have undoubtedly a very high respect for our manufacturing capacity. With ten million unemployed this country can become a vast munitions factory almost overnight at a comparatively small cost. With an inexhaustible supply of arms, ammunition, planes, food and motorized equipment available, with the British navy at an all time peak, and a French army acknowledged by military experts as the best in the world, we will not be surprised if the psychopathic Mr. Hitler one day soon puts a bullet through his brain. When and if that happens, the browbeaten, abused and disillusioned German people, will again be in a position to sue for peace.

BARBECUE PARTY AT CAIN'S AUTO COURT

Mr. and Mrs. Will Cain celebrated the completion of a barbecue pit and out door fire place at their auto court recently with a delightful party for all those in the camp. Twenty seven were present to enjoy delicious steaks and group singing.

At this party were two groups of four generations: Mrs Maltman, who resides at the court, her daughter, Mrs. Ryant and her daughter Mrs. Polly and Barbara Polly. The other group were, Mrs. Gantzer of St. Paul her daughter, Mrs. Dahners of San Francisco, son, Mr. Dahners who resides at the court and his daughter, Gail Marie Dahner. The Dahners are also related to a member of the pioneer Donner party that underwent such suffering in crossing the mountains in pioneer days, a lake and summit being named for them.

Jim — "What are you doing for your cold?"

"SWING MIKADO" IN SACRAMENTO NEXT TUESDAY

The "Swing Mikado" will swing into action at the Memorial Auditorium, Sacramento on the night of September 19. This production not only has novelty but a lot of push and go, plus enough of Gilbert and Sullivan to keep the Savoyards from having dyspepsia.

Out of it comes some of the best choral singing from the colored cast that has been heard anywhere since the successful "Run Little Chillun." This company casts caution and timidity to the winds when it gets into group work.

Jester Hairston, as Ko-Ko, The Lord High Executioner—has delighted audiences throughout the San Francisco run—and during the appearances on Treasure Island. He also accepts credit with Gordon Lange for the staging of the show which is presented by Paul Posz with the Misses Ware and Hazelton sponsoring the production in their California cities.

Viola Lee brings to the part of Katisha a lovely voice and stage presence. Her numbers are constantly interesting and in "Alone and Yet Alive," (her torch song which has a special shadowy nude ballet working in the back ground) she always wins especial favor from the audience and has to repeat at least the last verse.

Another high point in the production is the specialty dance of Lovett and Villa—which comes in the first act and really introduces the swing note to the production This pair of tap dancers do a challenge routine that would pass muster on any top-line vaudeville show.

The "Swing Mikado" is presented with bizarre costumery, a large company of well-balanced voices under the direction of Foster Cope and a great deal of enthusiasm on the part of everybody concerned.

Reservations are being made at Ye Music Shoppe, Sacramento.

CAIN'S AUTO COURT UNDER NEW OWNER

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Ball of Grass Valley have purchased the Cain Auto Court near the Nevada City high school on Sacramento street and will take possession the latter part of this week. Ray Ball was a partner of Eldon Kendrick in the local ice company. He sold out several weeks ago. He is a member of the local Veteran of Foreign Wars Post and has made a wide circle of friends while in this city.

Will Cain, teacher from Colusa county, purchased the court from Julius Rude in 1935 and moved his family here to reside. He has built up the court and store until it is a successful business. Mr. Cain appreciates the business that has come to him and wishes the new owner success. He is preparing to go to Palo Alto and attend Stanford University this term. The good wishes of the entire community go to this man who has also taken an active part in civic affairs.

Judge —"Has the defendant a good reputation for veracity?"

Witness — "Well, to be honest, your honor, when it's time to feed the hogs he has to get someone else to call them. They won't believe him."

"Papa," cried little Sally, "the furniture man is here."

"I'll be there in a minute. Ask him to take a chair."

"I did, but he said he would start with the radio."

P. G. & E. BUYS GOLD RUN PLANT

The P. G. and E. recently purchased the smallest electric distributing system it has ever bought—one consisting of a few hundred feet of wires and serving about a dozen customers in Gold Run, Placer County. Since 1909 it has been owned and operated by James D. Stewart of Auburn, who was born in Gold Run in 1877 and for many years carried on extensive hydraulic mining activities there.

The Gold Run system was established as the result of frequent trips to the town by the late James H. Wise, one of the pioneer executives of the P. G. and E. He put up at the Pine Grove Hotel, owned by Stewart and on each visit there was considerable banter because he had to use candles or kerosene lamps although a transmission line ran within 500 feet of the building. Finally he had the hotel connected up and service started July 4, 1909. Then the Southern Pacific asked for electricity in its station, yards and employees' homes. So Stewart arranged to buy "juice" wholesale and retail it as a one-man utility.

At the outset the charge was 50 cents a month for each light and 50 cents more if an electric iron was used. In 1919 meters were installed and then the rates became 10 cents per kilowatt hour for the first twenty kilowatt hours, 8 cents per kilowatt hour for the next thirty and 6 cents per kilowatt hour for all over fifty, with a minimum charge of $1.50 a month. Incidentally, Stewart never read a meter or hired anyone to do so. He taught his customers to read them and let them make out their own bills.

Under P. G. and E. rates, the Gold Run folk are enjoying handsome savings. Here are examples of the reductions in monthly bills: from $1.50 to $1.35, $3.60 to $2.60. $7.40 to $4.40.

Stewart says he had a lot of fun in the utility business, but adds that though his system was tiny, he had to pay exorbitant taxes and was "pestered to death by demands from all sorts of government agencies for reports on this, that and the other thing." Get him when he's not busy and he'll entertain you for hours with his experiences. However, if you call on him, be sure you follow the rules on a brass sign on his door.

Food Prices And Profits

A Statement Of Safeway Policy

THE FORCES OF market disturbances, fear, and speculation, are at work. Prices for some basic commodities have already gone up. Increases in Safeway's retail prices on those items reflect the rise in wholesale cost, over which Safeway has no control.

It is a fundamental Safeway policy to earn only a small profit on each sale. Safeway pledges that during the period of war emergency it will not change this policy; and that in the future, as heretofore, it will make every effort through improved methods to reduce distribution cost—the difference between what the farmer gets and the consumer pays. You will always be able to buy from Safeway at the lowest prices available anywhere.

Consumers may assist in preventing unwarranted price increases by continuing their purchases on a normal scale. There are adequate supplies of food stuffs for every American. Hysterical buying which strips retail and wholesale stocks creates artificial scarcity, which pushes prices to abnormal levels.

Machinery exists within the government to control production, storage and release of commodities, imports, exports, quotas and prices—if it should become necessary to employ these methods to protect the economic welfare of the country.

Safeway further pledges complete cooperation with the governmental agencies and with farmer producers in all efforts to stabilize prices; discourage profiteering; and maintain orderly facilities for food distribution.

NAVAL QUOTA IN NOR. CALIFORNIA IS DOUBLED

As a result of the Navy Department's decision to authorize the enlistment during September of 3300 apprentice seamen throughout the United States, the normal enlistment for Northern California has been doubled.

Commander F. L. Worden, U. S. Navy, Officer in Charge of the Navy's San Francisco Recruiting District, announced today that one hundred young men from the Preferred Waiting List have been instructed to report immediately to the San Francisco Recruiting Station for final physical examination and enlistment.

The majority of the men called are high school graduates as it is the policy to urge all men to finish high school if possible before applying for enlistment.

Commander Worden stated each man chosen deserves much credit in qualifying for acceptance because only one man out of each ten who applies is fortunate enough to find his name on the accepted list by successfully meeting the rigid mental test, moral and physical requirements for enlistment in the Navy.

It is anticipated that many applications will be filled at all Navy Recruiting Stations by those who desire to take advantage of the early enlistment made possible by the increased quotas. American citizens between 18 and 25 years of age are eligible. School, police, character references, and parent's consent are required.

The housewife had been put on a budget and at the end of each month she and her husband went over the accounts. Often he came to such items as "H. O. K., $3 and "H. O. K., $6."

Finally he asked: "What is H. O. K."

And she replied: "Heaven only knows."

Twentieth Anniversary of One of Greatest Gifts Ever Made to People of California

CNPA Service, Inc.

On September 15, 1919, the trust indenture signed by the late Henry E. Huntington (above), establishing the Library and Art Gallery at San Marino bearing his name, was recorded in Los Angeles County. One of the most valuable gifts ever made by a citizen of California, it created a free research library, art gallery, botanical garden, and museum, which has already served hundreds of scholars and over 1,700,000 visitors.

ANNIVERSARY OF HUNTINGTON'S GIFT TO STATE

SAN MARINO, Sept. 15.—Today marks the twentieth anniversary of one of the greatest gifts ever made to the people of California. On September 15, 1919, the trust indenture establishing the Henry E. Huntington Library and Art Gallery at San Marino was recorded in Los Angeles.

Henry E. Huntington, who was born in Oneonta, New York, in 1850 and died in 1927, was one of the world's greatest collectors of art and of rare books and valuable manuscripts. Always modest in his activities as a collector, he gave out no information about his collections nor did he tell his plan to give them to the people of California, until the recording of the deed made the facts public. It was then learned that his collection of eighteenth century British paintings was the finest outside England, and that he had also assembled miniatures, furniture, and English and French eighteenth-century decorative arts of the choicest quality to adorn his Georgian mansion, which, with two hundred acres of his estate, "San Marino Ranch", were included in the gift.

Mr. Huntington's library consisted of 100,000 rare books and over one million manuscrift items, virtually all of them illuminating some phase of Anglo-American civilization. More than one hundred separate libraries had been purchased in entirety. The 200 acres surrounding the two buildings were planted with rare shrubs and trees, and contained the largest desert plant collection in the western hemisphere. All of these, with an endowment for maintainence, were transferred to a group of five trustees, with injunctions to administer the entire gift for the public welfare. The founder continued to occupy his home until his death in 1927, when the trustees assumed control.

Mr. Huntington wished to leave not only a museum, and a library, but desired also to create a research institution which would enrich the intellectual life of California and of the United States. He made provisions for inviting, to San Marino scholars of established reputation, as well as promising younger men and women, as associates or fellows. More than sixty such appointments have been made from nearly forty colleges and universities.

The Library by its nature is reserved for scholarly use, but everything of public interest in the art gallery and botanical gardens is available to visitors, who throng the galleries six afternoons each week. In the past eleven years, over 1,700,000 persons have made the pilgrimage to San Marino including nearly 7,000 professional, spcial and other groups from all parts of California, as well as scores of national conventions. The galleries are always filled to capacity during tourist seasons. More than 100,000 students from grammar school age to the college level have been brought by the teachers.

A feature of the exhibitions service has been the series of almost ninety special displays commemorating historic anniversaries or illustrating important literary or historical movements. These have revealed something of the wealth of material for which the Huntington Library has become world famous.

The present board of trustees consists of Robert A. Milliken, chairman, William B. Munro, vice chairman, Herbert Hoover, Edwin P. Hubble, and Archer M. Huntington.

Mrs. Oscar Odegaard has as guests her sister and brother in law and niece, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Robbins, and baby, Gail N. Tartentino, all of Long Beach.

Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Rogers of Loyalton visited Mr. and Mrs. Gus Dimmen Wednesday. Mr. Rogers formerly owned and operated the Loyalton paper.

Traffic Cop—"Hey! Where do you think you're going?"

Motorist—"Be easy on me, officer, This is the first time I haven't had my life along to tell me."

Mrs. Hefty"I've had a lot of trouble in my life, but I've always kept my chin up."

Mrs. Catty—"Kept it up, my dear! You've doubled it."

RED CROSS INSTRUCTION

CAMPTONVILLE, Sept. 14.—The American Red Cross is making arrangements to give a course in first aid, the course to be sponsored by the Yuba County Chapter and to be given by a physician from Sacramento who stay here for two weeks. The course will be in 24 hours of instruction given each evening until completed, a certificate will be awarded each student on completion of the course. There is no charge for this course, except for a small text book. The forest service barracks will be used as a class room. Anyone interested in taking this course should leave their names with Ranger Frank W. Meggers or Judge A. M. Cleveland. The course should start early in October. Following this course a Red Cross First Aid Station fully equipped will be established at the forest service headquarters.

JUST WONDERIN'

I wonder when you're thinking
Of things you used to do,
When life was in it's springtime
And all the world was new,
If long forgotten moments
Come back, wherein you see
As in a polished mirror
The child you used to be.

I wonder why the lady wished to know; she did however; for right in the midst of a conversation which had to do with matters of far greater importance she asked: "do you remember the first verse you ever wrote?"

I didn't right at first; then memory bestired itself and scenes and circumstances surrounding the production of that first unambitious bit of rhyming, came back with the clarity of images seen in a clear and tranquil stream.

The little mining town of Sweetland on the San Juan Ridge, the little white school house down by the creek, sixty or more boys and girls seated at their desks, the boy across the aisle gloating over the acquisition of a fine, new book, titled, I think, Advanced Arithmetic.

No one had given me one of those new books, why? Perhaps because parents and teacher knowing full well the poor use I had made of the old arithmetic, felt that to furnish me with one which contained still harder problems would constitute a sinful waste of tax payer's money. This marked oversight grieved me not at all, but I was curious, so taking advantage of a time when the teacher's back was turned, I whispered a request and the boy mathematician unhesitatingly placed his treasure in my outstretched hand.

Opening the book at random, I hastily scanned its pages to find myself confronted with signs and symbols, of which I knew little and cared less; turning to the front of the book I found these words inscribed in a school boy hand upon the fly leaf. They intrigued me greatly.

"This is my book, if you so much as touch it, I'll pull your nose."—Signed, Ed Fowler.

Your book I touch, the cover I close,
And now Ed Fowler, come pull my nose.
Signed—Addie Merriam.

The little boy friend was not offended with this sacrilege with pen and ink he retraced the words I had written and in this state of preservation they came in due time to the attention of our beloved teacher who, possessing wisdom and understanding far beyond his years, appraised childish pranks and misadventure at their true value; my lines evoked from him a cryptic smile, but not a single word of either praise or condemnation. And so it was that my first bit of versification passed into the oblivion it deserved.

Uncle Silas says: "Anyway, when we are thinking about our happy school days, we sort of forget the new war and all of its dire implications." —A. MERRIAM CONNER.

C. H. M. A. WILL HONOR HARRY ENGLEBRIGHT

Harry L. Englebright, congressman from this district, has made special arrangements to remain in Nevada City in order that he may be a guest of honor tomorrow evening of the California Hydraulic Miners association at dinner in the National Hotel.

Sunday morning he will leave immediately for Washington D. C. to arrive there in time for the opening of the special session of Congress called by the President to meet next Thursday morning.

Congressman Englebright will make the address of the evening at the dinner. He will be presented with a solid gold card, weighing nearly an ounce, signifying his life membership in the California Hydraulic Miners association. The gold comes from the gravel deposits on the four watersheds which are to be served by the four debris dams which Englebright, in a battle covering many years finally obtained for the revival of placer mining in the counties, made famous in an earlier time by enormous gold production from gravel deposits. The gold in the card was contributed from large corporations and snipers on the streams. The gold card is mute evidence of the gratitude of the thousands for unremitting labor of Congressman Englebright in convincing Congress of the tremendous values the debris dams will yield to California and the nation.

Only those who reserve seats will find a place at the dinner. Reservations may be made with H. F. Sofge, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, W. W. Esterly, secretary of the C. H. M. A., or at the National Hotel. The reservations should be made immediately.

BOB TAMBLYN IS ROTARY SPEAKER

Bob Tamblyn was the speaker at Rotary yesterday. His topic was Traffic accidents illustrated by pictures and charts published by one of the large insurance companies and used in connection with talks on this subject in schools and clubs.

Guests of the club at luncheon were the Reverend David Ralston, pastor of the Methodist church, the Reverend Pateman, rector of Trinity Episcopal church, Edgren Williams, scout executive for Tahoe area. Williams will be speaker at next Thursday's luncheon.

While the people of this and all other countries were tremendously shocked at the loss of some 112 lives in the torpedoing of the Athenia last week, Tamblyn said, they do not seem to realize 32,000 people killed in highway accidents last year, and over million injured, is a much greater catastrophe. In fact in the last 15 years nearly half million persons have been killed in traffic accidents, and many millions injured. The economic loss runs into the billions of dollars, costing more than the entire cost of the public school system in the United States.

Excessive speed accounts for 39 per cent of all traffic accidents Of all accidents 28 per cent involve pedestrians. Of the 32,000 killed in the highway accidents last year, 19,000 were killed during the dark hours, and the majority of these between 6 and 8 o'clock p. m.
